MILLS COMBATS SHERMAN.

The McKinley and Wilson Tariff Bills Compared—Senator Squire's Response—Washington News.

Washington, January 3.—The senate heard a stirring debate today, the question being the main theme, Senator Sherman's speech, which had been anticipated with much interest for some time, initiated the discussion. The veteran was in good voice and his speech was closely followed throughout. This, however, was merely a prelude to an unexpected financial controversy, vigorous and personal in character.

Mr. Elkins of West Virginia sought to secure an immediate vote on his resolution directing that all bond issues be advertised and the bonds offered to the public.

Mr. Hill attempted to have the resolution referred to committee, but on a roll call the vote was overwhelmingly in favor of proceeding with the question. Only six negative votes were cast, viz: Chilton, Caffery, Hill, Mitchell of Wisconsin, Murphy and Brice.

Mr. Hill spoke vigorously against the resolution. He asserted that Mr. Sherman, when secretary of the treasury, had made bond contracts with New York syndicates similar to the one now assailed. This rought on a sharp personal debate, in which Mr. Hill, Mr. Sherman, Mr. Hoar, Mr. Teller and others participated.

At 5:30 o'clock the senate agreed to adjourn, although the motion was carried by a bare majority of 1.

During the day, Mr. Morrill, from the finance committee, reported that the tariff and bond bills will be ready on Tuesday, to which date the senate adjourned.

At the opening of the session, Mr. Morrill (Rep., Vt.) moved that when the senate adjourns it be until Tuesday next.
He said: "I hope that by Tuesday, when the senate meets, the tariff and bond bills will be ready to report on both the tariff and bond bills passed by the house."

The motion for an adjournment until Tuesday was carried by a large majority.

and elsewhere for the transaction of the business of the United States.

belonged to the Fifty-first congress, declared Mr. Mills, and Mr. Sherman was particularly responsible for the legislation of that congress. The democrats had turned over to the Harrison administration in 1889 $230,000,000. How was it, he asked, if the claim that the McKinley bill had produced sufficient revenue was true in 1891 when the democrats again assumed control, all that surplus was gone, consumed and dissipated?

Mr. Mills compared the McKinley and the Wilson bill. The former was entitled "A Bill to Reduce Revenues," the latter "To Reduce Taxation." The report on the McKinley bill, written by Chairman Sherman, resulted in the production of the measure on the revenue of the government. And yet, with the McKinley act responsible for the reduction of revenues, the cry was now raised that the Wilson act was responsible for the decrease.

Mr. Mills criticized the "double play" proceeding by the passage in the house of a "friendly convention" bill, if this bill passed, as it might by popular support, it would meet with swift and sure punishment on the part of the people against those responsible for it.

Mr. Sherman was long and loudly aside and that of Mr. Elkins (Rep., W.
Va.), directing the disposal of bonds by public sale, was taken up.

Mr. Elkins moved in its support. He referred to the fact that petty government officials were compelled to make contracts after the advertisement and yet the president and secretary of the treasury were not held to the same rule. He said that only $5,000,000 had been paid in commissions on loans aggregating $2,500,000,000 during the year.
The Wilson bill would pay 1 per cent on the bonds, while the McKinley bill paid 1 1/2 per cent.

Mr. Elkins moved that the senate proceed with the consideration of his resolution. Mr. Hill sought to object, but was not sustained.
